Thassos

The green island

Thassos, the northernmost island of Greece is 16 nautical miles far from Kavala. You can reach the island by hydrofoil (Flying Dolphin) or by ferryboat from Kavala and by ferryboat from Keramoti and Nea Peramos. There are regular itineraries throughout the year and additional ones during summer. The ports of arrival are Prinos and Limenas, the most important port of the island, where the capital of the island is also located.

The island, surrounded by rich vegetation, its numerous clean organized or secluded beaches covering a distance of 115 kilometers, its tourist substructures and history, the opportunities offered for sea sports and off-the-road activities, the sights and the savoury delicacies is a dear and special destination for holidays.

Thassos was inhabited for the first time during the Neolithic era by Phoenicians. As the myth tells, the Phoenicians founded cities at each region they passed through while searching for Europe, their leader's sister that was kidnapped by Zeus by transforming himself into a white bull, mad of love for her.

Later, Thracians settled at the island, who acquired power by exploiting the rich local mines. These mines arouse the interest of the Ionians from Paros that captured Thassos at the beginning of the 7th century BC. The great poet Archiloch from Paros, who wrote a poem thereof, participated in this campaign too.

The Thasians moved on rapidly and founded colonies in the nearby region. During the Archaic era the island had great power and maintained trade activities with the whole Greek world. During the Medean Wars, Thassos was subordinated to the Persians, who coerced the Thasians to demolish their marvelous marble walls. During the Peloponnesian War, Thassos became the "apple of discord" between Athens and Sparta.

During the 2nd and 1st century BC, under the protection of the Romans, the island burgeoned tremendously. Although the mines had already been exhausted, Thassos realized important exports of marbles and wine. In 42 BC the assassins of Julius Caesar, Cassius and Brutus, established their depot on the island.

During the Byzantine era, Thassos was plundered by the Avars and the Saracens.

From the myth to history

From the myth to history

After the capture of Constantinople by the Crusaders in 1204, the island was conceded to the elder Venetian doge, Enrico Dandolo and his descendents.

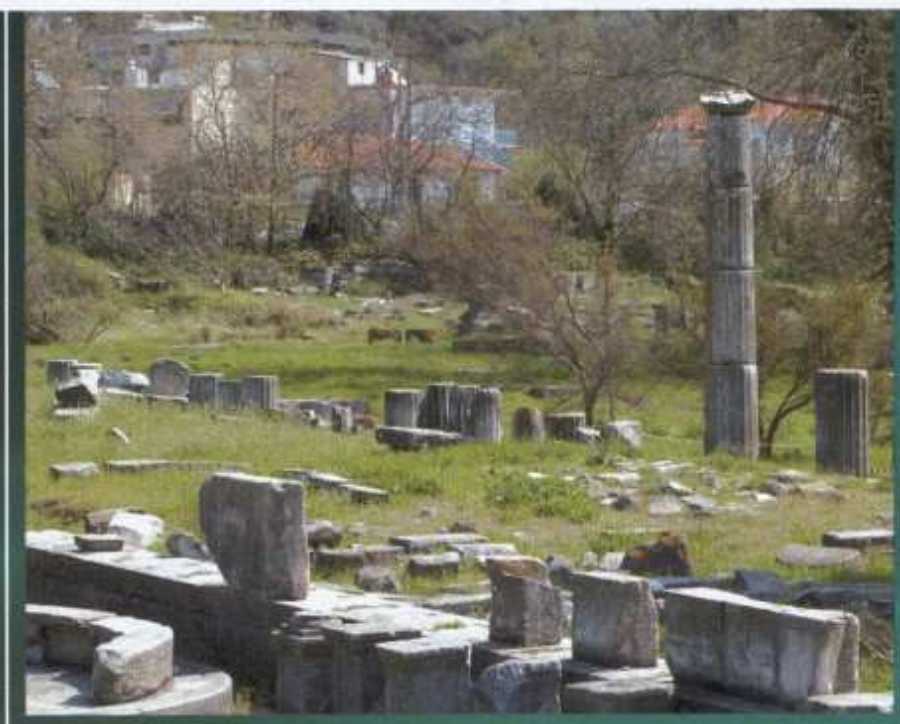

However, Thassos rapidly was incorporated into the state of Thessaloniki, founded by the Byzantine Despot of Epirus, Theodoros Doukas Aggelokomninos. Later, after the re-capture of Constantinople by Michael Paleologos, the island became again a part of the Byzantine Empire.

In 1354, the Byzantine emperor Ioannis Paleologos conceded Thassos to his Genoese ally and son-in-law, because he helped him to defeat his internal opponents. The Gatelouzos family ruled one way or another till 1455 when they were succeeded by the Turks.

In 1770, Orlof's Russians captured Thassos, while in 1813 the Sultan conceded the island to the Turkish-Egyptian Mehmet Ali, who was born in Kavala. The Thassians rebelled in 1821, but the revolution did not meet any success. In 1902 the Turks dominated again the island.

During the Balkan War of 1912, the Greek army took over the island, which belongs since then to Greece. In 1916, during the First World War, Thassos was conquered by the Entente Powers. From 1941 till the end of the Second World War, the island was under the Bulgarian occupancy.

The city of Thassos and the main seaside housing estates

The city of Thassos or Limenas is the capital of Thassos.

It is a modern, international tourist center and provides all the means for a comfortable way of living.

Tourist agencies, car rentals and full visitor services (information, board & lodging, health, food, clothing, equipment, seasonal articles, gifts, vehicle replenishment, transport, bank, dining, entertainment, telecommunications, etc.) are offered at Limenas. There is also a marina for the mooring and replenishment of small vessels, while Limenas is also a base for the outset of an around island tour by bus or ship.

The other housing estates of the island are Panagia, Potamia, Kinira, Alyki, Astris, Potos, Limenaria, Theologos, Maries, Kallirachi, Prinos, Sotiras, Mikro and Megalo Kazaviti and Rachoni.

All villages except Limenas, Limenaria and Kinira have a seaside housing estate, their "Skala".

Limenaria with the housing estate Kalyves consist of the second larger town of the island. The town was developed also by the inhabitants of the highland medieval estate, Kastro, in order to cover the needs of the mine workers. In 1903, the German company Spindel came to Limenaria to exploit the iron minerals of the area. The "Palataki" (Little Palace) dominating on the hill above Limenaria is one of the projects built during that period, operating today as a cultural center.

The island's sea transport is covered by the ports of Limenas, Prinos, Skala of Kallirachi and Limenaria. At all the maritime housing estates there are hotels, rooms to let and all the necessary facilities for dining, entertainment, purchases, transport and health for the pleasant sojourn of the visitors.

Mountain Villages & other activities

Apart from the very famous beaches, Thassos has a reputation for its traditional mountain villages. Some of the mountain settlements with a particular Macedonian architecture, slab roads and cobblestone pavements, flowery yards and gardens, waters and rich vegetation are the village Panagia, with the homonymous church from which the village took its name; Potamia with the Polygnotos Vagis Museum; village Maries, the foundation of which is dated back to the Byzantine years with the monastery of Panagouda; the village Callirachi, which, according to the tradition, was built after the distraction of the original village Kaki Rachi by the pirates; the village Sotiras, where, according to tradition, there was a settlement with a sanctuary in the honour of Thassios Iraklis; Megalos Prinos (Megalo Kazaviti) and Small Prinos (Mikro Kazaviti). The last two are picturesque villages mounted on the mountainsides, thus being protected once by the pirates. Just 12 km from there, one can find the monastery of Saint Panteleimonas surrounded by a picturesque piny area.

Lastly, Rachoni and Agios Georgios are surrounded by a forest. Mehmet Ali, the founder of the Egyptian Royal Dynasty was raised by the family Theodoros Karapanagiotis. The mountain settlements of Thassos provide numerous services to the visitors (lodge & boarding, markets, transports, etc).

The region between Mikro Kazaviti, Maries and Theologos, at the verdurous mountain Ypsario, is a place suitable for walking or touring by 4x4 vehicles, off-road motorcycles or mountain bikes.

Various outdoor activities are organized by:

The Jockey Club PIGASOS (Tel. +3025930 31475) at Theologos. Single riding jaunts for children and adults are offered, as well as organized tours for training and therapeutic riding.
